A great many Cardiff homes still carry chimney stacks that haven't seen a fire in decades. On the terraces of Splott, Roath and Grangetown, central heating replaced the coal fire long ago, yet the stack stays up there, soaking up rain and slowly losing its mortar. Chimney removal is one of the jobs Redland Roofing roof tiling Cardiff Cardiff is best known for, with 14 separate Google reviews mentioning it. If you've wondered whether roofers in Cardiff can take down an old stack without making a mess of the roof, the short answer is yes, and here's how it usually goes. A redundant chimney isn't harmless. Stacks exposed to south-westerly gales and Cardiff's heavy rainfall develop cracked pointing, loose pots and failing flashings. Water can soak down through the brickwork into bedrooms and chimney breasts, and a stack that leans or sheds bricks becomes a real safety worry above a pavement or back lane. Repair and repointing is sometimes the better answer, especially where a chimney is still in use or forms part of a shared party-wall stack. Where it isn't needed, taking it down removes the upkeep for good. John will give you an honest view on which makes more sense for your house, and he'll explain why. The stack is taken down carefully from the top, and once it's below roof level the real skill lies in making good the roof. On the Welsh slate terraces of Splott and Roath, that means closing the gap with slate laid and fixed to blend with the rest of the slope, and dealing properly with any lead that once dressed the old stack. One customer had a rotting chimney removed alongside repairs to squirrel damage and new dry verge caps, leaving the whole roof sound again. Dust and rubble are cleared away at the end, and a tidy clean-up is something reviewers mention again and again.

Every quote is free and written down before any work starts, so there are no surprises. How can I tell a dodgy roofer from a good one? Be wary of anyone who knocks on the door uninvited, pushes for cash up front or claims the whole roof needs replacing without showing you why. A reputable Cardiff roofer will give a written quote, explain the guarantee, confirm they are insured and show you photos of the problem. Redland Roofing Cardiff do all of this as standard on every job. Who are some reputable roofers in Cardiff? Look for an established local firm with a long track record and plenty of genuine reviews. A roofer who recommends a repair rather than an unnecessary replacement is usually a good sign. What questions should I ask my roofer before work starts? For a full re-roof, ask how the house will be kept dry overnight. Redland Roofing Cardiff leave roofs watertight at the end of every working day and give a clear timeline before starting. Felt flat roofs tend to last 10 to 15 years, while EPDM rubber, which Redland Roofing Cardiff specialise in, can last 25 to 30 years or more. What usually causes a roof to leak? The most common culprits on Cardiff homes are slipped or missing tiles, cracked flashing around chimneys, blocked gutters, worn valleys and failed lead joints. On extensions and garages, flat roofs often leak where the surface has cracked or a joint has opened. Redland Roofing Cardiff trace the source first so you only pay to fix the real problem. Do I need planning permission to replace my roof in Cardiff? A like-for-like replacement on a standard house usually falls under permitted development.
